Topic: Navigating Through Ethically Challenging Situations

Guardians often find themselves in the challenging dilemma of remaining person-centered while navigating legal lines and maintaining protective responsibilities. This course focuses on how to best proceed in scenarios that don't have single, clear, black-and-white solutions. As a result of this course, participants will be able to:

- Prioritize the goals, needs, and preferences of individuals under their care, per national standards, even in challenging situations;
- Follow legal and ethical guidelines in confronting issues with individuals under their care;
- Use decision-making models in determining the appropriate resolution to those issues; and
- Interact with the courts as required or appropriate in resolving issues.
